Programme of Census Reports and other census information

The present series of County Reports gives statistics for Administrative Counties, County Boroughs, local authority areas with population of 15,000 or more and county aggregates. The subjects covered are population and acreage; sex, age and marital condition; birthplace; private households, dwellings, tenure and household amenities; private motor cars and garaging; economically active and retired males and their socio-economic groups.

The National Summary Tables will give summaries of the information contained in the County Reports for Great Britain as a whole, the Standard Regions and the Conurbations.

The Economic Activity Tables will give statistics of the occupied population based on their personal occupation (classified according to the Classification of Occupations, 1966)* and the employed population classified into the branches of industry in which they are employed (as defined in the Standard Industrial Classification)† with reference to age, marital condition, employment status, socio-economic group, etc. Analyses will also be given of each important industry or group of industries showing the principal occupations which contribute to it and each important occupation or group of occupations showing the principal industries in which people are employed. These tables will be published for Great Britain and in some cases for Standard Regions (of England and Wales) and Conurbations. Tables for Administrative Counties, County Boroughs and urban local authority areas with populations of 50,000 or more will be published in a series of County leaflets.

The Migration Tables will give statistics of the numbers and characteristics of people who changed their usual residence in the year or in the five years before Census Day with details of their sex, age, marital condition, area of previous residence, occupation, industry and socio-economic group; and of the number and characteristics of migrant households and families. These tables will cover England and Wales only.

The Workplace/Transport Tables will give details of the resident population and the population employed in each area and of the main workplace movements from one area to another, the main means of transport to work used for such movements and the characteristics of the people in particular streams. These tables will cover England and Wales only.

The Household Composition Tables will provide information on the composition and social and economic characteristics of households and families. These tables will cover England and Wales primarily but some appendix tables for Great Britain as a whole will be given.

The Age, Sex, Marital Condition and General Tables will give the main population figures compared with those of previous censuses for England and Wales, the Standard Regions and Conurbations. Other topics covered by these tables will be Usual Residence, Birthplace, Visitors to England and Wales, and Non-private establishments such as Hotels, Hospitals, etc.

The Housing Tables will contain tabulations not covered by the National Summary Tables on dwellings, households, tenure, household amenities, cars and garaging. Most tables will refer to England and Wales, the Standard Regions and Conurbations but some tables for local authority areas will be included.

The Parliamentary Constituency Tables will give for each parliamentary constituency in the United Kingdom details of the population by their sex, age, marital condition and economic activity; also details of dwellings, households, tenure, amenities, cars and transport to work in the same detail as provided by Scale 'B' in the present series of County Reports.

The Commonwealth Immigrant Tables will provide information on the distribution and characteristics of people who gave as their place of birth any Commonwealth country with the exception of Canada, Australia and New Zealand. These tables will cover Great Britain.

* H.M. Stationery Office, 1966, price £2. 0s.0d. net

The Education Tables will give details of the age, sex, occupation and industry of those people who had obtained any academic or vocational qualification (higher than G.C.E. - A level) since the age of 18 and details of the type, level and subject of the qualifications held. These tables will cover Great Britain.

Scotland. The Registrar-General for Scotland will publish a series of county reports for Scotland and a series of National reports covering the main census topics. Details of these can be obtained from the General Register Office, Census Branch, 35 Station Road, Corstorphine, Edinburgh, 12.

Commentaries. These will not be included in any census volumes but may be published separately later.

There will be an administrative report on the census as a whole and a statistical report on census methodology.

Sample Census 1966, County Report

General Explanatory Notes

THE SAMPLE and the SAMPLING ARRANGEMENTS

The 1966 Census was not a complete enumeration of all the people in England and Wales as in previous censuses but of a ten per cent sample of the population.

The sample selected for each local authority area in the country was:-

- (a) one in ten of the structurally separate private dwellings and 'small' non-private establishments (i.e. hotels, hospitals, etc. expected to have fewer than 15 persons present on census night);
- (b) one person in ten present at every 'large' non-private establishment (i.e. hotels, hospitals, etc. expected to have 15 or more people present on census night).

The main sampling frame was the 1961 Census record. A computer programme was written to examine this and to print out for each 1961 Census enumeration district:-

- (a) a list of one in ten of the structurally separate private dwellings and 'small' non-private establishments, excluding private dwellings in special enumeration districts (i.e. those districts containing only a non-private establishment and its associated private dwellings which had been expected to have more than 100 population in 1961) and
- (b) a list of every large non-private establishment.

Caravans were excluded from the listing of private dwellings.

Private dwellings remaining in the sample which were part of or associated with a non-private establishment were removed from the sample.

These lists were then brought up to date to allow for new building since the 1961 Census and to include residential caravans. The list of 'large' non-private establishments for each local authority area was sent to the appropriate authority who added the names of new establishments and deleted those which had been demolished. For each local authority area a sample was selected of one in ten of the new hereditaments for which a proposal for valuation had been made since 1st April, 1961. Those which were obviously non-residential were deleted from the sample. In addition, each local authority provided a list of the caravan sites containing three or more residential caravans in its area.

Finally the Ministry of Defence and the Home Office provided lists of married quarters built since 1st April, 1961, for the armed forces and the prison service. One in ten of these dwellings was selected for the census.

Tests have been carried out as part of the validation programme of the census to estimate the number of private dwellings that had no chance of selection for the census because they did not appear in any of the sampling frames.

The addresses of the private dwellings, (including the 'small' non-private establishments), the large non-private establishments and the caravan sites selected by these methods were written into the 1966 Census enumeration record books.

The enumerators were instructed to visit only the addresses listed in the record books. If the address was a private dwelling the enumerator delivered a census form to the head of each household living there. If the address was only part of a house converted to the use of several households, forms were issued to every household in the building. (This was necessary to create a proper sample of structurally separate dwellings as distinct from households). If the address was a small hotel or some other 'small' non-private establishment a special 'Institution' form was delivered to the person in charge.

In each 'large' non-private establishment listed in the record book which proved to be a hotel or boarding house there was a full 100% enumeration of guests and resident staff. A sample of one in ten of the people enumerated in these hotels was selected at the census office. In other 'large' non-private establishments the person in charge listed the names of all people spending census night on the premises and issued a personal form to one in ten of these. All the private households attached to non-private establishments were enumerated as private households. (One in ten of these was selected for inclusion in the final analysis at the census office).

At caravan sites enumerators drew up a list of every caravan and issued a private household form to one in ten of these.

The sampling arrangements therefore included provision for enumerating rather more than exactly 10% of the population. Procedures however were set up to ensure that the census analysis was based on the population living in exactly 10% of the private dwellings in the sample frame and 10% of the population in non-private establishments.

SAMPLING ERRORS

The sample selected for the census was stratified by local authority area. The sample unit was either a cluster (i.e. a dwelling) containing at least one person, or one person (out of every ten) in a 'large' non-private establishment.

Sampling errors consistent with this sample design will be calculated and published as part of the final statistical assessment of the census. For the present volume a rough indication of sampling error can be given on the assumption that the sample was a simple random sample of people, households or dwellings.

If the sample figure for a particular category is less than a quarter of the whole sample population, as it is in most cases, then the 'standard error' of the sample figure is approximately its own square root.

Using this approximation of standard error it can be stated that there is:-

- a 2 to 1 chance that the error due to sampling for any figure is less than its square root
- a 20 to 1 chance that the error due to sampling for any figure is less than twice its square root.

For example if in an area there are 625 widowed females in the sample then the standard error of this figure is approximately $\sqrt{625}$ or 25. The estimate of widowed females in the total population is 6,250 and there are odds of 20 to 1 that the correct population total lies within the range $(625 \pm 2 \times 25) \times 10$ or 5,750 to 6,750. It is important to remember that all such calculations must be made using the actual sample number i.e. 625 and not the population estimate i.e. 6,250.

Relative sampling errors decrease as the number of observations in the sample increases as the following table illustrates:-

(a)	(b)	(c)
Sample figure	Twice the square root	$\frac{(b)}{(a)} \times 100$
4	4	100
9	6	67
16	8	50
25	10	40
49	14	29
100	20	20
400	40	10

PRESENTATION CONVENTIONS

To emphasise that the figures shown in this report are derived from a ten per cent sample they have not been multiplied by ten. Instead the comma for entries with three or more digits has been inserted two digits from the right. For example a sample figure of 125 is presented as 1,25 to remind readers that the population estimate is 1,250.

Care should be taken to read sample figures of one and two digits correctly. For example,

- 13 in the sample means an estimate of 130 in the population and
- 6 in the sample means an estimate of 60 in the population.

A blank means that a particular cell in the table is impossible.

The symbol "-" means zero.

Where rates are calculated the figure 0 means that the actual rate is less than $\frac{1}{2}$ but is not, in fact, zero.

Certain rates have not been calculated and a symbol "+" has been printed instead. This means that there were less than 15 observations in the numerator of the rate and consequently the standard error of the rate is greater than 25%. This is generally true for simple proportions where the denominator is relatively large. The convention has also been applied to the 'average number of persons per room' in Table 11 although this is not a simple proportion.

CENSUS POPULATION

The population figures in this report are for the enumerated population of each area; that is the number of people actually present in the area at midnight on Census night the 24th/25th April. In particular, this figure includes people who usually lived elsewhere, including abroad, but who were temporarily staying in the area on census night. The enumerated population excludes persons who although usually resident in the area spent census night elsewhere. People on night work were regarded as present in their homes for census purposes and anyone who had spent census night travelling was regarded as present at the address where he or she arrived on the morning of 25th April.

Heads of private households were instructed on census form H (for private households) to give particulars for:-

- "1. Each person alive at midnight on 24th April, 1966, who spends Sunday night 24th/25th April, 1966 (Census night) in this household, and
2. Each person who usually lives in this household but spends Census night elsewhere, and
3. Each person who arrives in this household next day (Monday) before noon and who has spent the night travelling."

The enumerated population thus consists of groups 1 and 3.

The following additional instructions were given in the accompanying notes:-

"Persons to be included

- (i) Everyone who usually lives in the household must be included on the census form whether they are present or absent on Census night, 24/25th April.
- (ii) Visitors spending Census night in the household should be included, also those who arrive on Monday morning (25th April) having spent Census night travelling.
- (iii) Do not include any absent family member who usually lives at another address (for example, a son who has left home and is living in lodgings or a person living permanently in an institution such as an old people's home or who has lived there for the past six months)."

Data was collected about absent members of private households but these people were not included in the enumerated population. No information was collected about households who were completely absent from their homes on census night but certain particulars for a sub-sample of these were collected in the course of the census post-enumeration survey.

The following instructions were given to heads of households about the people to describe as 'present' on the census form:-

"Question 3 - Present or Absent on Census Night

- (i) Write 'Present' for all people who spend Census night here. Members of the household who are out on night work should also be marked 'Present'. So should anyone who arrives before mid-day on Monday having spent Census night travelling.

(ii) Write 'Absent' only for household members who are spending Census night away from home (other than on night work). For example, write 'Absent' for a schoolboy who lives at home during the holidays but is now away at boarding school or for anyone temporarily away on his job, on holiday or in hospital (including a new-born baby).

(iii) For people marked 'Absent' write also the full postal address of the place where they are staying on Census night. If the precise address is not known write the name of the town or village where the person is staying. For anyone temporarily absent abroad write the name of the country."

In non-private establishments details were only collected for people present on Census night.

People on board vessels (with the exception of foreign naval vessels) which were at moorage or anchorage in England or Wales on Census night were counted as part of the enumerated population of the area in which the vessel was moored, etc. People on vessels engaged in coastwise or fishing voyages were allocated to the next port of call.

Enumerated and Resident Population

The enumerated population of a local authority area is not directly comparable with the Registrar General's annual estimate of the population for that area.

The annual estimate of the population of a local authority area is an estimate of the resident population of the area, that is the population which usually lives in the area, and in particular

- (a) boarding school children and university students are assigned to the area in which their educational establishment is situated; and
- (b) armed forces are assigned to the areas in which they are actually stationed whereas in the enumerated population people are assigned to the areas where they were enumerated on census night irrespective of where they are permanently resident or treated as resident for estimate purposes.

Tabulations will be published as part of the later census programme which will present the census results in a form comparable to the annual estimates.

DEFINITIONS

PRIVATE HOUSEHOLDS

The private household is the basic unit of enumeration in the census. It was the enumerator's job to deliver a census form H to the head or acting head of each private household at each of the sample addresses. (If there was nobody present in the accommodation on census night the enumerator was instructed to record "Absent" in the case of accommodation which was inhabited but the occupants were temporarily away and "Vacant" for habitable but completely unoccupied accommodation). A private household was defined as:-

- "(a) any group of persons, whether related or not, who live together and benefit from a common housekeeping; or
- (b) any person living alone who is responsible for providing his or her own meals."

A person living, but not taking meals, with a private household was treated as a separate household, but if that person had at least one meal a day with the household he was regarded as part of that household. Breakfast counted as a meal for this purpose.

By convention a household had to have at least one room. Two or more persons living in one room were regarded as one household regardless of whether or not they had their meals together or shared a common housekeeping.

A person or a group of people living in a non-private establishment were treated as a separate household if they were either:-

- "(a) a family which does not normally depend on the institution for the provision of meals, or
- (b) a person or group for whom the institution does not provide any daily meals."

Households in shared dwellings or 'sharing households' are shown separately in some tabulations. Whether or not a household shared a dwelling was determined by the enumerator.

Certain statistics are also presented for households who not only shared a dwelling but who also lacked the exclusive use of a cooking stove and sink. This latter fact was established by the enumerator when he decided that the household shared a dwelling and recorded by him on the back of the census form H in the panel marked 'For Enumerators Use'. These details could not be collected for 'sharing households' who were absent on census night.

NON-PRIVATE ESTABLISHMENTS

The difference between the total population enumerated in an area and the population in private households is the number of people enumerated in the various types of non-private establishment such as hotels, boarding houses, hospitals, mental homes, homes for old people, childrens' homes, boarding schools, prisons, armed forces establishments, vessels, hostels, religious communities and other communal establishments. This figure can be deduced as the difference between col. (f) and col. (1) in Table 1.

No statistics for these establishments are shown in this report. For most areas the number of such establishments is small and the sampling arrangements were such that only 10 per cent of the 'small' establishments and only 10 per cent of the people in all of the 'large' ones were included in the census. (Although there was 100 per cent enumeration in large hotels only one in ten of people enumerated was included in the analysis). Consequently even the total population in non-private establishments for most areas is liable to relatively high sampling errors.

HOUSEHOLD SPACE

A 'household space' is the accommodation for a single household irrespective of whether it constituted a structurally separate dwelling or whether it was occupied on census night. A one-room dwelling could not count as more than one household space. All the vacant accommodation in a shared dwelling counted as one household space.

An 'occupied household space' is one in which someone was present on census night or which was recorded as 'occupier absent'. The number of occupied household spaces therefore equals the number of households. The difference between total household spaces and occupied household spaces is the number of household spaces described as vacant on census night.

Most of the tables in this report are confined to those households which had at least one member present on census night, because these were the households for which census forms were completed. The only data available for wholly absent households is the enumerators estimate of the number of rooms in the accommodation.

DWELLINGS

For the census the term 'dwelling' was rigorously defined to mean structurally separate accommodation with independent access to the street or to a public staircase or hall.

Accommodation was regarded as structurally separate if it was all contained behind its own front door; bathrooms and water closets did not count as part of the accommodation for this purpose. It had independent access to the street if the occupants could come and go without having access to anyone else's living quarters.

The normal detached, semi-detached or terraced house was a structurally separate dwelling by these criteria and so were flats in purpose-built blocks. In houses which had been converted for the use of several households it was more difficult to decide whether the house comprised one or several structurally separate dwellings. If several households lived in a converted house and occupied flats each of which was contained behind its own front door, then each household occupied a structurally separate dwelling, but if one of these households occupied accommodation which had more than one room opening on to a hall or landing then the whole house was regarded as one dwelling. Any part of a house such as a basement or even an upper floor which had been permanently sealed off from the rest of the house and had access only from outside the building counted as a dwelling separate from the remainder of the house.

A dwelling normally consists of more than one room. Bed-sitting rooms in converted houses were counted as separate dwellings only if they had their own bathroom and cooking facilities within the accommodation.

An 'occupied dwelling' is one in which someone was present on census night or contained a household space which was recorded as 'occupier absent'. The difference between total dwellings and occupied dwellings is the number of dwellings recorded as vacant on census night.

Separate dwellings within non-private establishments

In these premises if a group of people were regarded as forming a private household their accommodation was regarded as constituting a dwelling even although it was not structurally separate and had access to the street only through the hotel, hospital, etc. Houses attached to hotels, hospitals, etc. were only regarded as dwellings if they were occupied by private households; if occupied by hotel guests or hospital patients they were counted as part of the non-private establishment.

ROOMS

The following notes and questions were included on the census form H for private households.

"24. Rooms

Include all living rooms, bedrooms and kitchens whether or not at present in use. Include a scullery if it is used for cooking.

Do not include a bathroom, toilet, closet, landing, lobby or recess; a scullery which is not used for cooking; a store-room, office, shop or any other room which is used solely for business purposes.

A large room which can be divided by a sliding or folding fixed partition should count as two rooms.

A room which is divided by curtains or portable screens into separate sections (e.g. for living and sleeping) should count as one room. Prefabricated extensions should also count as rooms if regularly used for living, eating, sleeping or cooking.

(a) How many rooms are there in your accommodation?

(b) How many of these rooms are a kitchen or a scullery?

(c) How many of the kitchens or sculleries shown at (b) are regularly used for breakfast or any other meal? "

In ordinary unshared dwellings the head of the household completed the answers to this question, but in shared dwellings the enumerator completed them for each householder. The enumerator provided an estimate of the number of rooms in vacant accommodation and in accommodation from which the occupier was absent on census night.

The 1966 Census definition of 'room' included all kitchens as rooms whereas in 1961 kitchens were only counted if used regularly for meals. Questions 24(b) and 24(c) were included in 1966 so that the 1961 definition of rooms could be used in 1966 in addition to the revised one. Table 16 compares the 1961 Census results with those for 1966 for the county as a whole.

Where households in shared dwellings shared the use of any room it was credited to one household to avoid the use of fractions in the tables.

NOTES ON TABLES

Age, Sex and Marital Condition (Tables 2 and 3)

The census questions on these subjects were as follows:-

7. State the sex (M or F) and date of birth of each person.	Sex	Date of Birth
		Day	Month	Year
8. Write "Single", "Married", "Widowed" or "Divorced" as appropriate. If separated and not divorced, write "Married".

This was the first time in which date of birth was specifically asked for in the census. Information on age in years was collected in previous censuses. For tabulation purposes 'date of birth' was converted to 'age in completed years at census date'.

Birthplace (Table 4)

The census question on birthplace was phrased as follows:-

"9. Birthplace. If born in England, Wales, Scotland or Ireland write the name of the town or village and the county of the mother's usual address at the time of the person's birth. If this address was in London write the name of the district. If born overseas write the name of the country of birth. (See Notes.)" and the following further notes were provided:-

"If the mother's usual residence at the time of a person's birth is not known, give the name and address of the hospital, nursing home or actual place of birth.

If born at sea write 'At sea'."

A person's birthplace was thus defined as the mother's usual residence at the time of the person's birth and not the actual place of birth which may have been a hospital or a relative's house. The actual place of birth had only to be given if the mother's usual residence at the time was not known.

Information on birthplaces was coded to counties within Great Britain and elsewhere to countries. Since there have been considerable boundary changes in recent years it was necessary to collect details of the locality of birth so that the correct county of birth could be determined.

For people with a birthplace within England and Wales the region of birth is given in Table 4. These regions are the Standard Regions agreed by the Government for statistical analysis and correspond with the Economic Planning Regions with the one exception that Poole, Dorset is included in the South Eastern Region for statistical purposes but in the South Western Region for economic planning purposes.

For definition of standard regions see page xix.

People born overseas i.e. outside the British Isles are sub-divided into:-

Visitors: Those who stated on the census form that their usual residence was outside England and Wales.

Residents: Those who stated on the census form that their usual residence was within England and Wales. Residents are sub-divided into those born in

- (i) Commonwealth Countries, Colonies and Protectorates including Rhodesia and those born in

- (ii) Foreign Countries which includes all other countries and in particular the Republic of South Africa which in previous censuses was treated as part of the Commonwealth.

Building Type (Tables 5 and 13)

The sample units were dwellings and the census enumerators were asked to classify each dwelling into one of the following five building types:-

BUILDING TYPE	CODE
"Any house or bungalow which constitutes a single dwelling; a houseboat	A
A building which consists of non-residential or institutional premises } plus a single dwelling (for example, a shop with one flat above)	B
A purpose-built block of flats or maisonettes	C
A building which has been converted to provide more than one dwelling	D
A caravan.	E

If a building with non-residential or institutional premises has more than one dwelling associated with it (for example, a shop plus two dwellings), ignore the non-residential or institutional part and code the building C or D according to the relevant circumstances."

Tenure (Tables 9, 10 and 11)

Heads of households had to answer the following census question about the tenure of their accommodation:-

"25. Ownership and renting

Answer "Yes" to only one of the questions (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) or (f) or give details at (g).

Notes

If the house, flat, etc., is occupied on a lease which was originally granted for at least 21 years, or has since been extended to 21 years or more write "Yes" at (a). For shorter leases answer one of the other parts.

If the accommodation is provided in connection with the employment of a member of your household and ceases to be provided after the employment comes to an end (e.g. tied cottage, caretaker's flat) write "Yes" at (c) whether rent is paid or not."

"Does your household occupy its accommodation (house, flat, rooms, etc.) -

(a) As owner-occupiers (including purchase by mortgage)? 0
(b) By renting it with a farm, shop, or other business premises? 1
(c) By virtue of employment? 2
(d) By renting it from the Council or New Town Corporation or Commission? 3
(e) By renting it unfurnished from a private landlord or company? 4
(f) By renting it furnished from a private landlord or company? 5
(g) In some other way? Please give details

The figures to the right of the questions are the codes applied to each answer.

If no tenure was stated a code 6 was applied to that household.

If more than one YES was entered the census staff decided the most appropriate code and in the absence of any further information selected the answer with the lowest code number.

Where line (g) had been answered the census staff assigned the most appropriate code according to the following additional instructions:-

" Grace and favour residence	4
Owned by relative, no rent paid	4
Owned and furnished by relative, no rent paid	5
Almshouse	4
but if stated to be furnished	5
House provided to a clergyman or minister of religion e.g. rectory, vicarage, clergy-house, presbytery or manse	2
Provided by employer	2
Rented from employer (independently of occupation)	4
Rented from previous employer	4
Retired, house provided rent free by previous employer	4

If the panel is blank, or no other code can be applied, write 6 in the panel below the figure 5."

The categories shown in the tables are defined in terms of codes as follows:-

Owner occupied	0
Rented from a local authority or New Town Corporation	3
Rented unfurnished from a private landlord or company	4
Rented furnished from a private landlord or company	5
Other tenures and not stated	1, 2, 6

The tenure of a household is as coded on the census form for that household. The tenure of a dwelling is the lowest numerical code allocated to any of the households in that dwelling.

Household Amenities (Table 12)

The following question on household amenities was included on the census form H:-

"26. Household amenities

In the following questions -

a hot water tap means a tap within the building and connected to any form of heating appliance (e.g. boiler, tank with immersion heater, geyser, etc.) which in turn is connected to a piped water supply;

a water closet means a flush toilet emptying into a main sewer, septic tank or cesspool. It does not include a chemical closet or earth closet;

a fixed bath means a bath permanently connected to a water supply and with a wastepipe leading outside the building;

a fixed shower means a shower permanently connected to a water supply and with a wastepipe leading outside the building;

- (a) Has your household the use of a hot water tap within the building?
Write "Yes" or "No"
- (b) If "Yes" is it shared with another household? Write "Yes" or "No"

- (c) Has your household the use of a water closet (W.C.) with entrance inside the building? Write "Yes" or "No"
- (d) If "Yes" is it shared with another household? Write "Yes" or "No"
- (e) Has your household the use of a water closet (W.C.) with entrance outside the building (e.g. in the garden, backyard or lane)? Write "Yes" or "No"
- (f) If "Yes" is it shared with another household? Write "Yes" or "No"
- (g) Has your household the use of a fixed bath within the building? Write "Yes" or "No"
- (h) If "Yes" is it shared with another household? Write "Yes" or "No"
- (i) Has your household the use of a fixed shower within the building? Write "Yes" or "No"

Changes from 1961 Census

A bath counted as a 'fixed bath' in 1961 if connected to a wastepipe leading outside the building. In 1966 to count as 'fixed' it had to be connected to a water supply as well.

The distinction between water closets accessible from inside the building as opposed to those accessible from outside the building was not made in 1961.

In 1961 a water closet was defined as one within or attached to the building. Since a water closet attached to a building could be accessible from either inside or outside the building the 1966 statistics on the use of water closets are not comparable with those collected in 1961. The 1961 statistics on this subject are misleading since the Census post-enumeration survey showed that the census question on water closets had been widely misunderstood (See England and Wales, Census 1961, Housing Tables Part II - Tenure and Household Arrangements, page xii).

Cars and garaging (Table 13)

The head of each household was asked the following question:-

"27. Cars and garaging

- (a) How many cars, including vans, taxed wholly or in part as private vehicles, are owned or used exclusively by you and members of your household? (See Notes below)
If none, write "None"

Notes

Include cars or vans provided or subsidised by members' employers for business or pleasure and used exclusively by members of your household.

Do not include -

cars or vans taxed wholly as goods vehicles or hackney carriages;
cars or vans owned by members of your household but not used by any member of your household; cars or vans belonging to visitors.

- (b) For each car or van entered at (a) show where it is normally kept overnight by writing "Yes" at (i), (ii), (iii) or (iv), or by giving details at (v). If there are more than two vehicles give answers here for only two of them

	1st vehicle	2nd vehicle
(i) In a garage or carport within the grounds of your dwelling	1
(ii) In a garage or carport elsewhere	2
(iii) Within the grounds of your dwelling but not in a garage or carport	3
(iv) On the road, street or verge	4
(v) Elsewhere - please give details			5

Car therefore means a car or van taxed wholly or in part as a private vehicle and owned and/or used exclusively by a resident member or members of the household.

Information on garaging was collected for up to two cars per household. The garaging arrangements for third and subsequent cars was regarded as 'not stated' and given code 6. The codes for the five types of garaging arrangements recognised are shown on the census form to the right of the answer.

In Table 13 the expression 'within dwelling curtilage' means within the grounds of the dwelling in which the household lived. The columns (k) to (p) contain the counts of garaging codes (1) to (6) respectively in the same order as they appeared on the census form.

Households in single dwelling buildings means those households with Building Type code A, B or E (i.e. caravan).

Households in multi-dwelling buildings means households with Building Type code C or D.

Socio-Economic Group (Table 14)

In this table which is limited to males aged 15 and over

Economically Active means 'having a job' at any time in the week ending 23rd April, 1966 or 'out of work' on Monday, 18th April, 1966, and normally part of the labour force i.e. waiting to take up a job, seeking work, or prevented from seeking work by temporary sickness, or injury.

Retired means described as wholly retired on the census form.

The Socio-economic groups applied in this table are described in the Classification of Occupations, 1966, pages xi-xii. The allocation of particular combinations of occupation codes and employment status groups is set out on pages 130-137 of the same volume.

EVALUATION OF CENSUS RESULTS

Immediately after the census was completed a post-enumeration survey was mounted to assess the accuracy of the sampling arrangements and the completion of census forms. The results of this survey, and other investigations designed to check the census results, are not yet available but will be published later as part of the series of national reports.

AREAS

There are two levels of presentation.

Scale A which is the fullest scale and applies to:-

1. The administrative county (A.C.) as a whole with and without any associated county boroughs (C.Bs.).
2. Each county borough and new town.
3. Each municipal borough (M.B.) and urban district (U.D.) expected to have more than 50,000 population on Census day.
4. The aggregate, within the administrative county, of all municipal boroughs and urban districts combined and of all rural districts (R.Ds.).

Scale B which is less detailed than Scale A and applies to:-

1. Those municipal boroughs and urban districts expected to have between 15,000 and 50,000 population on Census day.
2. All rural districts expected to have more than 15,000 population on Census day.

No statistics are published for local authority areas expected to have less than 15,000 population on Census day.

However, tabulations at the Scale A level of presentation have been prepared for all local authority areas and where these have not been published they may be obtained on request from the General Register Office for the cost of photocopying.

Tabulations have also been prepared at the Scale B level of presentation for all local authorities, urban wards, rural civil parishes and census enumeration districts and these are available on request from the General Register Office, price 7s 6d. an area. Further details are given in circular C.O. 66/5 available free from the General Register Office, Census Branch, Segensworth Road, Titchfield, Fareham, Hants.

For the Greater London Report the City of London and all London Boroughs are regarded as Scale A Areas.

Names

The spelling of place names follows generally that adopted by the Ministry of Housing and Local Government and the Ordnance Survey Department.

Acreage

Acreage figures, which have been supplied by the Ordnance Survey Department and rounded to the nearest acre, relate to land and inland water together, exclusive of tidal water and foreshore.

Evaluation of Census Results

The results available to date from the 10% sample census suggest that when multiplied by 10 they will give a national population of between 1% and 2% lower than the official estimates for mid-1966 adjusted for changes between census day and 30th June.

Population estimates are of course subject to errors of various kinds. They are based on the previous census which may have been incomplete, the natural increase since the previous census which is known fairly accurately and estimates of migration into and out of the country which are less satisfactory. However, the margin of error in the population estimates is not thought to be the explanation of the discrepancy. The main reasons are considered to be defects in the sample frame and concealed non-response to the census.

Defects in the Sampling Frame

The sampling arrangements are described on page vii of the general explanatory notes.

These arrangements did not cover people living on small caravan sites or vagrants, but the number of such people is negligible and would not exceed 40,000 or less than 0.1% of the total population.

It was always realised that people living in dwellings for which no proposal of valuation for rating purposes had been made by 31st March, 1966, would be excluded from the sample. Investigations show that the number of people excluded from the census for this reason is something of the order of less than 0.5% of the total population.

The list of dwellings covered by the 1961 Census is known to be deficient in a number of ways but no values can be put on these deficiencies at present. In addition, the sample of dwellings drawn from the 1961 Census was deficient but this deficiency is thought to be negligible.

Non-Response

The extent to which the population census failed to enumerate all the people living in the sample units selected, is still being thoroughly investigated. The General Register Office carried out a 1% follow-up survey of all accommodation described as 'vacant' or 'occupier absent' at the census to see to what extent these places were occupied by e.g. people who were very difficult to contact. Finally, the Post-enumeration survey will reveal the extent to which people were omitted from the completed census returns which were received.

At this stage the task of evaluating the coverage of the 1966 Sample Census is incomplete but by the time national census figures are available in mid-1967 the various factors contributing towards the under-enumeration will have been investigated thoroughly and a detailed assessment of the overall coverage will be available.

Appendix C

Special Note on Westminster L.B.

In addition to the sources of error described above, figures for Westminster L.B. are liable to a further element of distortion. Completed census forms for the wards of Baker Street, Cavendish, Hyde Park and Lancaster Gate were accidentally destroyed on the way to the census office - these comprised the data for nearly 7,000 people.

Fortunately the enumerators' records books were not destroyed and it was possible to carry out a voluntary re-enumeration of private households. Seventy-seven per cent of the forms were completed and returned by householders.

An analysis was made of the households which did not complete a form and census data was estimated for each of them by duplicating at random the form for a household of the same size in a similar type of accommodation. Records for about 607 households (1,260 people in the sample) were reconstructed in this way.

The estimation of data for non-private establishments e.g., hotels, hospitals presented more of a problem. The provisional 10 per cent sample figure of persons in these establishments was 1,490. As most of the people enumerated in these would have moved out since Census day it was not considered possible to recover the lost information by re-enumeration except in some cases, of hospital staff. Information obtained from hospitals, hostels and other 'large' establishments enabled staff at the census office to replace approximately 500 of the lost forms with duplicates of census records for similar people in other establishments.

The course adopted for most of the 'large' hotels was to identify, for each, another London hotel of apparently similar type (from information concerning numbers of rooms, prices charged and amenities provided) and to select the sample from the forms collected from this 'analogue'. All large hotels were enumerated 100 per cent in the census so it was possible to select this sample so that it did not overlap that originally selected. Forms for about 400 people were replaced in this way.

Virtually all the 'smaller' non-private establishments in this part of Westminster L.B. are boarding houses and small hotels. Census data for these and for any 'large' hotels for which analogues could not be found were supplied by duplicating information for establishments in similar enumeration districts in the inner London area. Records for approximately 500 people were provided by this method.

H

(Form for private households)

To the Head (or Acting Head) of the Household:

Please complete this form by mid-day on Monday, 25th April, 1966 and have it ready for collection by the Enumerator when he calls. If you need help in filling it in, ask the Enumerator. If any of your answers seem to him to be incomplete or possibly inaccurate, he will ask you any questions necessary to enable him to complete or correct the form.

If you cannot hand the completed form to the Enumerator yourself, you may arrange for someone else to do it for you.

The information you give on the form will be treated as confidential and used only for compiling statistics. No information about named individuals is passed by the Census Office to any other Government Department or any other authority. And if anyone employed on the census improperly discloses information you provide, he will be liable to prosecution.

The legal obligation to fill in the whole form rests on YOU as head or acting head of the household. But each person who has to be included (see top of next page) is required to give you the information you need. If, however, any member of the household applies to the Enumerator or local Census Officer to make a separate, personal return, he will not be obliged to give you the information about himself and you will then need to answer only questions 1 and 2 in relation to that person. But any car owned or used by him should be included in your replies to question 27.

Where information is supplied to you—for example by a visitor or anyone not belonging to the family—you must not disclose or use it for any purpose other than filling in this form. (If you do, you will be liable to a fine of up to £10. There is also a penalty of up to £10 for refusing to fill in the form or refusing to give you information to enable you to fill it in, or for giving false information.)

- (i) Write 'Present' for all people who spend Census night here. Members of the household who are out on night work should also be marked 'Present'. So should anyone who arrives before midday on Monday having spent Census night travelling.
- (ii) Write 'Absent' only for household members who are spending Census night away from home (other than on night work). For example, write 'Absent' for a schoolboy who lives at home during the holidays but is now away at boarding school or for anyone temporarily away on his job, on holiday or in hospital (including a new-born baby).
- (iii) For people marked 'Absent' write also the full postal address of the place where they are staying on Census night, if the precise address is not known write the name of the town or village where the person is staying. For anyone temporarily absent abroad write the name of the country.

Question 4—Usual Address

- (i) For school children, students, etc., who live away from home during term, give the home address and not the term time address.
- (ii) (1) For members of H.M. Forces who live in married quarters give the address of the married quarters.
(2) For members of H.M. Forces who do not live in married quarters—if they live on the station give the address of the station; if they 'live out' give the living out address.
- (iii) For people present on Census night who live away from home during the week give the address from which they usually go to work, but if the head of the household lives away from home during the week write 'Here' for the usual address.
- (iv) For people with no settled address write 'None'.
- (v) For boarders who have a settled address with this household write 'Here'.

Question 9—Birthplace

If the mother's usual residence at the time of a person's birth is not known, give the name and address of the hospital, nursing home or actual place of birth.

If born at sea write 'At sea'.

Question 10—Employment

A job means any work for payment or profit including service in H.M. Forces. In particular it includes—

- (i) Work on a person's own account.
 - (ii) Part-time work, even if only for a few hours, such as jobbing gardening or paid domestic work.
 - (iii) Casual or temporary work of any kind (for example seasonal work, week-end work and vacation work by students).
 - (iv) Unpaid work in a family business including a shop or farm.
- Unpaid work, other than in a family business, does not count as a job.

Question 11—With a Job last week

As well as people who attended work for pay or profit in the week before the census, the following people also count as having "had a job" during the week ended 23rd April, 1966.

- (i) People away from work on holiday if their job is waiting for them on their return.
- (ii) People away from work because of illness or injury if their job is waiting for them on their return.
- (iii) People away from work because of a strike or other industrial dispute.
- (iv) People temporarily laid off work by their employers for that week.

Question 12—Employer and Employer's Business

- (i) Describe the nature of the employer's business fully, avoiding abbreviations or initials. General terms such as 'Manufacturers', 'Merchants', 'Agents', 'Brokers', 'Dealers', 'Engineering' are not enough by themselves and further details should be given about the articles manufactured or dealt in.
- (ii) 'Self-employed, employs others' means having one or more employees who are not family workers. (A family worker is one who lives in the same household as the employer and is related to him.)
- (iii) For civil servants, local government officers and other public officials give the name of the Government Department or Local Authority and the branch in which they are employed.
- (iv) For people employed solely in private domestic service there is no need to give the names of individual employers during the week; it is enough to write 'Private' in answer to this question.
- (v) For people who changed their job during the week give details of the job held at the end of the week.

Question 13(a)—Occupation

- (i) Full and precise details of occupation are required. If a person's job is known in the trade or industry by a special name, use that name. Terms such as 'Scientist', 'Technician', 'Engineer', 'Machinist', 'Fitter', 'Foreman', 'Checker', should not be used by themselves. Greater detail should be given as, for example, 'Wood-working Machinist', 'Civil Engineer', 'Tool room Foreman', etc.
- (ii) For civil servants, local government officers and other public officials, give their rank or grade.

Question 13(b)—Apprentices, Trainees

This part of the question should be answered for anyone undergoing training for a period fixed in advance and leading to recognition as a skilled worker or technician and/or to a recognized technical, commercial or professional qualification or managerial post. It should not be answered for a young person undergoing probationary training who has not yet entered into formal apprenticeship.

Question 14—Full-time/Part-time

- 14(a) Write 'Yes' if employment is normally full-time but was interrupted during the week (for example by sickness, injury, holidays, short-time workings, strikes or unfavourable weather) or was started or stopped part way through the week.
- 14(b) For part-time workers not at work during that particular week write 'None'.

Question 15—Place of Work

- (i) For people with no regular place of work such as sales representatives, transport inspectors, certain building workers and others who do not work daily at or from a fixed address or depot, write 'No fixed place'.
- (ii) For people working daily at or from a fixed address or depot, such as certain transport workers, and building workers employed on a site for a long period, give the address of the depot, site or other fixed address.
- (iii) For dock workers registered under the National Dock Labour Scheme who are in possession of a Pay Voucher Book issued by the National Dock Labour Board, give the address of the call stand or control point where they are required to prove attendance. For registered dock workers not issued with a Pay Voucher Book by the Board and other dock workers, give the name and address of the dock or wharf at which they are usually employed.
- (iv) For seamen give the name of the ship and, if it is in the United Kingdom, the port in which it is lying, otherwise give the name of the home port.

Question 16—Transport to Work

- (i) For people using more than one method of transport to work give only the method by which the longest distance is travelled (for example if the normal journey to work is one mile by bus and five miles by train, write 'Train').
- (ii) For people whose main method of transport to work is by bus, write either 'Public service bus' or 'Private bus' whichever is appropriate.
- (iii) For people whose main method of transport to work is by motor cycle combination write 'Motor cycle combination' and not 'Motor cycle'.
- (iv) For people who work at home write 'None'.
- (v) For people with no fixed place of work give the method of transport most often used for going to work.

Question 17—Other Jobs

- 17(a) Write 'Yes' for people who had any other job or jobs in addition to that described in questions 12 and 13. Any additional part-time or casual work counts as another job whether it was on the person's own account or as an employee.

Additional Note on the Evaluation of Census Results for Greater London

The population of England and Wales on census day 1966 is officially estimated at 48,005,000 but the number of people enumerated in the sample census when multiplied by 10 is 47,135,510, about 1.8% below the estimate. The extent to which this factor varies within England and Wales has still to be determined, but the evidence so far suggests that the under-enumeration of total population was higher in Greater London than for the remainder of the country and was probably greater in Inner London than Outer London. The results of the sample census for Greater London, therefore, require an additional note of explanation.

The main reasons for the deficiency in the sample census results are defects in the lists of addresses from which the sample was selected (i.e. the sample frame) and errors made by both enumerators and householders during the census (these are referred to below as response errors).

Defects in the Sample Frame for Dwellings

The sample frame used for the 1966 census was the list of occupied and vacant dwellings counted in the 1961 census, supplemented by the list of new domestic rateable units added to local valuation rolls as a result of proposals made from 1st April 1961 to 31st March 1966. At the national level it is estimated that 0.75% of the total population was given no chance of selection for the sample census because of defects in the 1961 census as a sampling frame. This measure is based on a complete enumeration of about 20,000 households in 1,300 small areas as part of the census post-enumeration survey. The separate results for Greater London are less reliable, because they are based on a sample of 150 small areas, but these indicate that about one and a third per cent of the total population of Greater London was given no chance of selection in the census for this reason.

There are a number of reasons why the 1961 census record was defective as a sample frame for the 1966 census. A number of vacant dwellings were not counted as a result of a fault in processing, others under repair or conversion were deliberately not counted as 'vacant' because they were temporarily uninhabitable. These types of dwellings, and some others which were non-residential, were not recorded in 1961 and therefore stood no chance of selection for the 1966 census. The consideration of these cases provides no ground for doubting that the 1961 census was a satisfactory count of total population, but it does show that it was imperfect as a means of identifying dwellings in 1966.

The sample of new dwellings brought into rating as a result of proposals made from 1st April 1961 to 31st March 1966 was deficient because it omitted new dwellings completed by census day for which no proposal for valuation had been made by 31st March 1966. It is estimated that 0.35% of the population of England and Wales were given no chance of selection for the census for this reason, but the separate estimate for Greater London is lower than this, about a tenth of one per cent, because new dwellings are a smaller proportion of the total housing stock in Greater London than in the country as a whole.

Thus for England and Wales the under-enumeration in the sample census due to defects in the sampling frame was about 1.1%; for Greater London it was about one and a half per cent.

Non-response

There are two kinds of response errors to be considered: those due to enumerators and those due to householders. One type of enumerator error occurred when an occupied sample address was wrongly described as 'vacant', 'occupier absent' or 'derelict'. Another type occurred when enumerators failed to find all the households at other types of sample address. Some householders failed to report all members of their households and others wrongly included people who should not have been counted. The net under-enumeration due to response error was provisionally estimated at 0.5% for England and Wales (see notes to the Great Britain Summary Tables, 1966). This figure will probably be revised downwards to about 0.2% as a result of further analysis but the equivalent rate for Greater London is estimated at about 1%.

Thus total under-enumeration is estimated to be at least 1.4% for England and Wales (this includes 0.1% to allow for the deliberate omission of small caravan sites and vagrants) and about 2½% for Greater London. These figures are based on small samples and therefore are subject to relatively large margins of sampling error. Moreover they take no account of possible errors in the coverage of institutions. The error in Greater London could be 3% or higher, bearing in mind that a deficiency of 0.4% remains unexplained at the national level.

Figures for Individual Boroughs

Because the types of error described above are most likely to occur in areas with relatively high proportions of large houses occupied by several households, the error rates for Inner London are expected to be higher than those for Outer London. An indication of this is given in Table A which sets out a comparison of the sample census results and the Registrar General's mid-1966 estimates of population for each London Borough. It should not be assumed that the estimates and the census results provide upper and lower limits respectively on the population of each borough as the true figure may be higher or lower than either in some cases, but the difference between the two figures is a reasonable means of identifying the boroughs where the coverage of the census was least satisfactory.

Dwellings

The relative deficiency of dwellings in the census results for Greater London will be lower than that for total population. As one and a half per cent of the population of Greater London was omitted because of defects in the sampling frame, the proportion of dwellings missed was probably about the same. In addition the notes to the Great Britain Summary Tables draw attention to errors in both 1961 and 1966 in the identification of dwellings by census enumerators. It is estimated that, at the national level, the count of dwellings was at least 1.9% too high in 1961 and at least 0.4% too low in 1966 for this reason. No precise measure is yet available, but the response error is probably higher for Greater London than for the country as a whole in both 1961 and 1966, as it is prone to occur where there is a high proportion of households sharing dwellings.

Households

As the sample census results understate the population of Greater London by at least 2½% they probably understate the number of households by about the same amount. Furthermore, the notes to the Great Britain Summary Tables draw attention to the fact that the overall count of households is some 2% too low because of enumerator error alone. About half of this was failure to recognize one-person households as separate units; instead they were included as part of larger households. This type of error is expected to be higher in Greater London than elsewhere, as about half the one-person households sharing a dwelling are there.

Conclusion

The 1966 census results for Greater London as a whole probably understate the total population by at least 2½% and possibly by 3%, the number of private households by about 2½% and the number of dwellings by 1½%. All these estimates are subject to sampling error, and the figures for dwellings and households do not take account of enumerators' errors at present only measured at the national level.
